Macedonian Easter Eggs

By Mike and Saska
Find some nicely shaped leaves that are smaller than an egg.

Place one of the leaves on top of an egg.
Place the egg and leaf onto a piece of pantyhose,
so that the leaf is under the egg.

Draw the hose around the egg and twist the ends together very tightly.
The leaf should be pressed against the surface of the egg, and should form a fairly water-tight seal.

Tie the ends of the hose with a thread while keeping the twist very tight.

(Here, four hands are better than two!)
Cut the remaining hose so you can use the rest for more eggs.

If you leave the thread long, it makes a handy dipping tool.

Put the egg into the dye, and wait.
After a while, take the egg out and let it dry.

After the egg has dried, cut the tied end of the hose and unwrap the egg.
There are mixed results, but they are all pretty!
